The Pennsylvania Quarrel to be Amicably Adjusted.

MICHAEL DAVITT MAKES A FINAL SPEECH BEFORE LEAVING.

Meeting of the National Education Convention—A New Motive Power for Locomotives Tried in New Jersey.

SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.

PHILADELPHIA, July 12.—One hundred members or nearly a full representation of the republican state committee convened this morning. A proposition was submitted by the Young Republican club that both tickets be withdrawn. Candidates on the regular ticket were invited to be present and were warmly greeted. Several propositions looking to harmony were submitted, one by Chairman Cooper, that a vote of the republican party be taken at primaries to decide whether the regular or independent nominations prevail entirely or a new convention under rules recently adopted be also prepared.

A letter was presented signed by all candidates saying they would gladly place themselves in the hands of the state committee and submit their claims to any test deemed wise by that body, and retire if deemed necessary. Ex-Judge Pettis then submitted to the independents the following four propositions:

First—Submission of both tickets to a popular primary vote.

Second—Republicans at primaries to select a ticket composed of present nominees or any others.

Third—A new convention under the rules adopted by conference of independents and stalwarts be held the fourth Wednesday in August, ex-Chief Agnew, Hampton L. Carson and Francis B. Reeves to prepare rules to govern the convention.

Fourth—A new convention be held under the rules of the republican convention of May last, convention to occur not later than the fourth Wednesday in August.

These will be presented to independents and either one of these will be acceptable to regulars. The convention then adjourned.

A New Motive Power.

NEW YORK, July 12.—On the Erie railway to-day a locomotive fired entirely by hydrogen, as produced by chemical decomposition of water under the action of ignited naphtha, successfully ran from Paterson to Jersey City, making the trip one minute ahead of time and crossing into the depot with a pressure of 140 pounds of steam, which is nearly three times as much as ordinary locomotives carry at the end of such a trip. It is claimed that when the engineer gets more used to the new engine only half the naphtha used to-day will be necessary. The amount of naphtha used for 12½ miles was eighty-four gallons, costing $1 60, about one-third the cost of the coal usually used for the same distance.

SARATOGA, July 12.—The national educational association met this morning. Hon. Gustavus J. Orr, of Atlanta, delivered the inaugural. He said he was a southerner by birth, education and sentiment, and he felt that he truly represented the bulk of the people, as well as the educated class, when he said let the dead bury their dead and let what has been stand, we will busy ourselves with the present, which is living. These are the sentiments of the best men of the south, and certainly people of all sections of the country will heartily respond. The whole address was in this spirit and was very cordially received.

An Ingenious Thief.

ELIZABETH, July 11.—G. W. Bennett, janitor of the state National bank, was arrested last night, charged with robbery. He admitted his guilt. His depredations covered two years. During that time two paying tellers resigned because they could not make their accounts good. His method of robbery was unique. He passed a slender cord from the ceiling through a hole in the floor of the counting room to the back of the paying teller's desk. This cord had a leaden sinker gummed with wax at the end. This sinker was dropped on a $10, $20 or $50 note and noiselessly withdrawn.

The Archery Tournament.

CHICAGO, July 12.—In the gentlemen's match of 72 arrows at 100 yards Dr. A. Nash, of Brooklyn, who had the best score yesterday, did not shoot as well, making 42 hits and a score of 70. W. H. Thompson, of Crawfordsville, Ind., stands next, having made 24 hits, a score of 102, this morning, running his total up to 416. Competition will be resumed at 3 P. M. This morning Mrs. Gibbs of Brooklyn, and Miss Morrison of Cairo shot off the tie they made yesterday, Mrs. Gibbs winning. In to-day's contest the same ladies led again, Mrs. Gibbs making 34 hits and 146 points and Miss Morrison 29 hits and 123 points.

Political Nominations.

NASHVILLE, July 12.—The convention of the state credit Democrats nominated J. P. Trissell for governor.

UPPER SANDUSKY, O., July 12.—Democrats of the fifth district nominated George Loney for congress this last night.

DEFIANCE, O., July 12.—Republicans of the sixth district have nominated Col. J. H. Brigham for congress.

Davitt's Final Speech.

NEW YORK, July 12.—Michael Davitt took his leave for the present of the United States by appearing before the local land league organization last night. He made only a short speech and said he would be able to say to Parnell in a few days in Ireland "There are no dissensions in the United States." The mother of Parnell also spoke.

Iowa Statistics.

DES MOINES, July 12.—The following figures based on returns to county assessors show the number of live stock in the state. Condition of all stock is less favorable than in previous years.

A Mexican Outrage.

SAN ANTONIO, July 12.—Six American citizens have just been released from jail at Piedras Negras after having been in jail twelve days, without being charged with any offense, half starved and twice whipped by the jailer. They made affidavit before the U. S. commissioner and intend to present the case to the government. They were arrested for crossing the border in pursuit of stolen stock.

Failed to Lynch Him.

DENVER, Col., July 12.—Republican's Las Vegas: A mob of Germans, friends of Frank M. Meyer, murdered by B. C. Brown Monday night, made an attack upon the jail last night for the purpose of lynching Brown. The guards fired upon the mob and badly wounded four of them. Two will die.

WASHINGTON CITY.

The Day's Proceedings.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—The house devoted another day to the discussion of the sundry civil bill and will probably occupy the whole of to-morrow in the same way before the bill is ready to go to the senate. Most of the time to-day was taken up in discussing surveys of public lands and in a fight on the proposition to continue preparation of a geological map of the United States by the United States geological survey. The debate on surveyors was continued from yesterday, and had especial reference to restrictions to be placed on the taking up of public lands on certificates of deposits for surveys. The proviso of the committee bill, making restrictions explained in the [illegible] dispatch, was adopted this morning, after several amendments had been voted down. One of these was a proposition by Holman that hereafter no survey of public lands should be made except of lands suitable for agricultural purposes, and such other lands as are required for actual settlement under the homestead law. This was voted down by 34 to 58 and another amendment by the same member to destroy the assignability of certificates of deposit was disposed of in the same way. Representative Page who led the opposition to the committee's proviso of restriction of the use of certificates yesterday declared to-day after the charges that had been made of fraud in connection with these surveys, that he thought the system should be torn up by the roots and moved to strike out the entire clause authorizing these surveys. The house did not agree with him, and the clause stands as reported from the committee. Some of the charges alluded to were that a combination had been effected which, with connivance of the surveyor general, had been surveying worthless lands for years obtaining certificates for them and using these certificates to take up lands [illegible] where land is valuable. This system, it was said, had increased the amounts necessary to be appropriated for survey from $200,000 per annum sufficient for all requirements of settlement to [illegible]. In support of this a statement prepared at the general land office was printed which shows the amounts [illegible] for surveys from June 30, 1880, to June 18 last. This statement shows deposits to have been in California $2,5 301 while the amount of certificates deposited in payment of public lands was only $ 4 2 8. In the item appropriating $20,000 to enable the secretary of the interior to negotiate with Sioux Indians for cession of the great Sioux reservation in Dakota territory, Holman had inserted that if any lands shall be acquired from Indians it shall be upon the express conditions that the United States shall only dispose of said lands to actual settlers under the provisions of the homestead law.

The extreme states' rights men in the house, aided by members of the appropriation committee, made a big fight against the proposition of Atkins of Tennessee to continue preparation of the geological map of the United States. It was held that each state should do this sort of work for itself, and that as some states had already been enterprising enough to do this it would be an injustice to adopt the proposed amendment. There were enough members, however, whose constituents are in favor of having the work paid for out of the U. S. treasury to carry the amendment through, the final vote on its adoption standing 92 to 63.

The sundry civil bill is now far enough under way to count upon its completion by to-morrow night. Further business of the house will then be regulated by the conclusions reached at a caucus of republican members which it is proposed to hold to-morrow night.

Star Route Trials.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—In star route cases J. B. Cary of Oregon testified he carried the mail over the route from Canyon City, Oregon, to Camp McDermitt, Nevada. A letter from Miner was produced. It was printed on a letterhead of the Overland Mail Transportation Company with the names of Vail, Williamson and Miner as officers. Miner writes it has come to their knowledge that one Abbott, postmaster at Alvord, has been complaining to the department that only weekly mails come to him. Miner directs Cary to see this postmaster and silence him, using money if necessary for this purpose. He says Abbott probably knows nothing of a through mail and would be satisfied with weekly service. He added that Abbott had once before complained in the same way and had only ceased upon payment of $30 and was probably anxious now to get more money. Cary is directed to report his success to Williamson. Reading this letter produced a marked impression. Cross-examination failed to shake direct evidence.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—John A. Walsh and Joseph S. Cochran, an employe in the postoffice department, were before the new grand jury this morning as witnesses in connection with the star route case from San Antonio to Corpus Christi, Texas. J. B. Price, contractor upon this route, was indicted by the last grand jury, and has since disappeared. Walsh was sitting in the courtroom when the grand jury retired for consultation, he was subpoenaed within a short time.

Another route was then taken up, and counsel for defendants objected to introduction of certain evidence because only a minority of defendants ever had anything to do with the route under consideration, and he disconnected himself over four years ago. The court said indictment could not be taken apart like a child's toy, part of the evidence being ruled out as to one defendant, and another part where another defendant was concerned. All that were named for conviction must be found guilty upon the indictment, and not upon parts of it. In his view of the law the jury could convict some of the defendants and discharge others, but whoever was convicted must be convicted of the whole. He did not wish to be understood, however, as giving any opinion whatever upon the merits of the case. The subpoena issued for ex-Senator George E. Spencer on the 10th inst., as witness in star route cases, was returned from New York unserved, and attachment this morning was issued for him, returnable forthwith.

Specials from the Capital.

CHICAGO, July 12.—Journal's Washington special: Senate naval committee to-day completed amendments to the navy bill and will report it to the senate. The principal change is the addition of Gen. Logan's feature of the army bill regarding retirements. It is expected the bill will be vigorously fought by democrats in the senate, but will pass without material change. Much interest is felt in the first day of the revenue bill in the senate as it will show the scope which discussion is to take. If the whole tariff question is opened congress will be here a month yet.

Tennessee representatives say the work yesterday of the democratic bolters convention insures republican success.

The report of Doctors Hartigan and Sowers on examination of Guiteau's brain will be ready to-morrow evening. It is understood to differ in material points from Lamb's, and will find no evidences of insanity.

The internal revenue bill was further amended and corrected by the senate finance committee to-day.

Friends of the river and harbor bill are somewhat alarmed by the report that the president is likely to veto the bill. Two members of the cabinet have expressed themselves opposed to the bill as it is thought too great a burden to impose upon the country. The president himself has made careful inquiry regarding the bill, indicating that he feels much interested.

Much interest was felt to-day in the meeting of the grand jury to hear further facts in star route matters. It is said that Kellogg had a long interview yesterday with Walsh, who was expected to testify against him to-day.

The house committee on Indian affairs to-day agreed to report favorably to the house the bill making provision for granting lands in severalty to the Umatilla Indians of Oregon.

Passage of the River and Harbor Bill.

The senate concluded its work on the river and harbor bill this evening. The bill which appropriates almost $20,000,000, was passed by a vote of 39 to [illegible] and now goes to a conference committee of the two houses, which will probably agree to it almost in its present shape. A proposition by Mr. [illegible] providing that but one-half of the money appropriated should be expended during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1883, was voted down, 10 to 45. The provision of the bill for a survey for the Hennepin canal was agreed to by a large majority, and the proposition to make a survey for the Delaware and Chesapeake canal passed by a vote of 49 to 3.

Senator Morrill gave notice that he would call up the internal revenue bill to-morrow.

A Signal Station for the Columbia Bar.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—Representative George of Oregon has received assurance from General Hazen of the signal service bureau that he will at once proceed to establish a signal station at Cape Disappointment at the mouth of the Columbia river and connect it by cable with Astoria. This will be of interest to shippers of Portland and Astoria.

Reported to the State Department.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—The state department has an unofficial report that a flag of truce has been sent out from Alexandria and a truce been granted.

Heavy Armor vs. Heavy Guns.

The effect of yesterday's work rather staggers the advocates of a navy of heavy iron-clads, as it shows that it is almost impossible to construct anything that will resist heavy guns. Had the Alexandria forts had shells the result would have been worse for the vessels.

Further Complications Expected.

It is believed in diplomatic circles here that while the war in Egypt is practically ended the complications resulting from it will be very grave and far reaching especially as relates to the Suez canal, and thus affect the prospects of the canal at Panama.

Disappeared.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—Ex-senator Spencer of Alabama, who was under subpoena as a witness in star route cases has unexpectedly disappeared. He was subpoenaed to give testimony for the government in connection with the mail route from Canyon City to Ft. McDermott, Nevada. It is believed he is now in Dakota, and the government will use every effort to secure his immediate return.

Failed to Connect.

It is said the bouquet which Mrs. Scoville endeavored to convey to Guiteau the day preceding the execution has been analyzed and enough arsenic found in it to kill a dozen men.

SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.

ON BOARD H. M. S. INVINCIBLE, ALEXANDRIA, July 11, 7:30 P. M.—The great artillery combat which raged all day ended in complete success. The object for which we fought has been attained, the forts and batteries on the sea face of Alexandria being a heap of ruins. Considering the extent and nature of the works, weight and number of guns mounted, and dogged pluck with which the Egyptians fought them, the result has been attained with a surprisingly small loss of life. The total of casualties in the fleet being five killed and twenty-seven wounded. It is difficult so soon after the engagement to write a cool and collected narrative of the events of the day. The dead calm which has succeeded the tremendous roar of artillery which has gone on for so many hours seems strange and unnatural and we can scarcely realize that the first great sea fight with artillery of modern type had been fought and won.

At twenty minutes past six the ships of the squadron signaled all ready, but still further delay was necessary as the Egyptian officers carrying the admiral's reply to the ministry had to be put ashore. At half past six a quick order was passed round the deck to load with common shell, and a gleam of satisfaction shone on the men's faces and at seven o'clock signal was made to the Alexandra to open the ball by firing one gun. A heavy boom came across the water and then there was an anxious pause. Would the Egyptians answer or would they evacuate the forts. No sound came from the fort, but in the batteries opposite we could see men loading guns and concluded they would fight. Order was given to commence independent firing and a signal was run up for the fleet to begin a general engagement. A deafening salvo from five 9 inch guns went from the side of the Invincible while overhead ten Nordenfeldt guns on the topmast swelled the din which burst forth from all the ships. The bank of smoke which at once arose like a wall from our ship prevented me from seeing the results of our fire, but from the tops it was seen that the shells had struck rather low and the sights were raised from 1350 to 1500 yards. The Monarch and Penelope had both work close at hand. The roar of their heavy guns and ceaseless rattle of their Gatlings and Nordenfeldt machines, and the shrieks of the rockets which the Monarch was discharging, added to the sounds of our own guns, made up a deafening confusion which was impossible to describe and was most bewildering to hear. In any momentary interval the sound of guns from other divisions of the fleet told that they also were hard at work. Hastily a midshipman posted in the maintop signaled the direction of the strokes of shells and their accuracy of fire improved. Meantime the enemy's shots were coming thick and fast, their aim being directed chiefly against the Penelope and Inflexible. They were firing principally round shot. Twenty minutes after the first gun from the fort our royal braces were shot away and immediately afterward a shot penetrated forward, a splinter wounding a stoker severely.

At this time they appeared to have got our range pretty accurately, and round and conical shot whizzed thickly between the masts. I went round the ship and found the men fighting the main deck guns all stripped to the waist. Between each shot they had to sit down and wait until the smoke cleared. They were very anxious to know the result of their work, and asked eager questions of me as to what could be seen from aloft, but I could tell them little for the smoke hung like a veil between us and the shore.

To-morrow we go in to engage the forts within the harbor. Outside of us are merchant ships and foreign war vessels, most of whom will recover the harbor. We have destroyed the last of the threatening forts. Over Alexandria lies a cloud of [illegible] partly caused no doubt by the smoke of guns which the wind has not yet blown clear of town and partly from that arising from the burning palace.

No message of news has reached us from town and we know nothing of what is doing there, what [illegible] has been fired or what feelings have been excited among soldiers or the populace by the events of the day. The last news which reached us before the [illegible] announced was to the effect that the natives [illegible] cutting the wire with India and were considering the advisability of blockading the Suez canal.

Events to-day show that the determination expressed by Arabi Pasha and his party to oppose the fleet to the death has not so far been a vain boast, and I think they fought their guns to the last. But the fire of the fleet was so crushing and our metal so superior as to make their resistance ineffective. They appeared to possess no shells, which was fortunate for us, for had they used these instead of round shot casualties would have been much larger. As it is, our success, although not bloodless, has been achieved at a much smaller cost than could have been expected from the formidable nature of the positions we had to attack.

The most interesting incident was between the gunboat Condor, Commander Lord Chas. Beresford, with Marabout fort. His little vessel was close under the guns of the fort and opened a tremendous fire but was unable to silence it. The admiral then signaled other gunboats to assist in the engagement to keep her company and until the last moment she had not given up hope.

Heavy Cannonading.

LONDON, July 12.—A correspondent on board the Helicon sends the following: The loss of the Egyptians must be dreadful. A number of shells repeatedly struck the works just about the guns and threw up volumes of yellow dust. It was often thought the guns must have been demolished but they appeared uninjured when the smoke had cleared away. The funnel of the Superb is pierced, and the plate below the foremast of the Glacis torn away. One of the boats of the Inflexible is useless and other badly damaged. The Inflexible bore the brunt of the fire of the west end of the Ras el Tin fort for three and a half hours. The Sultan has a shot clear through her mainmast and another through her funnel. The harem adjoining Ras-el-Tin, and an adjacent rifle tower, continued to burn all night.

Notes of the Bombardment.

LONDON, July 12.—A correspondent on board the U. S. steamer Quinnebaug says: The Egyptians fought splendidly and the ships behaved magnificently. The Quinnebaug anchored only five cables away on the port beam of the Temeraire and had a fine view of the contest. Shells from the forts frequently fell quite close.

A correspondent on the Invincible telegraphs: The fort and batteries on the sea wall are a heap of ruins. The Egyptians stuck to their guns until the forts were crumbling. The aim of Egyptian gunners were chiefly against the Penelope and Inflexible and they fired principally round shot. Their elevation was bad. The Invincible was seldom hit. The armor of the Superb was penetrated. Egyptian officers set a good example to the men, often jumping upon the parapet to see the effects of their fire. The party of marines which landed from the Invincible to blow up Fort Mex saw several dead inside the fort. The Egyptians had no shells which fact accounted for the small number of casualties on British vessels.

At 5:45 this morning, the Helicon approached the Invincible with officials from Dervish Pasha, who had been trying to fight the flags up to night with a [illegible] the ministry to Seymour to offer to dismount guns. Admiral Seymour replied that the time for [illegible] had passed. The Ras-el-Tin palace took fire during the bombardment and was still burning at the time this dispatch was sent. Men were called for on board the Invincible at 11 M. to go ashore and spike the guns of the forts.

The Egyptian War Attracting Attention.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—The situation in Egypt has attracted much attention at the capital, and especially at the war and navy departments. Army and navy officers are awaiting the [illegible] results of the bombardment and [illegible]. Great interest is felt in this contest as it is believed that it will be very instructive in determining the fighting value of the latest pattern of iron clads built with heaviest ordnance. The British ship Invincible is supplied with new 80 ton rifled guns. The representative here of the largest ordnance manufactory in the country as he read the announcement that four forts had fallen said: No more convincing proof is necessary of the great value of heavy ordnance and fortifications cannot stand against them. This same British fleet off Alexandria bay to-day could batter down every fort from Maine to Rio Janeiro. It could sail directly under our guns and fire with impunity. That is the lesson of the Alexandria bombardment for this country and the government had better be doing something about it. A. S. Hewitt, very truthfully in the house the other day said it would take three years to build a single one of these 80-ton guns. This is a statement from one desiring legislation, but it is in the same spirit that officers of the ordnance corps and of naval officers generally are watching the contest in Egypt. At state department no information could be obtained relative to instructions given to Minister [illegible] Wallace, although instructions have been sent [illegible]. At navy department it was stated the remark attributed to Admiral Nicholson that if forts fired on him he should return fire was entirely false. The admiral was not authorized to open fire under any circumstance whatever, and should he allow his vessels within range or attempt to open fire he would be at once court martialed.

Wednesday's Bombardment Commenced.

LONDON, July 12.—A dispatch from the eastern cable company's ship at Alexandria, sent at 11:40 A. M., says the Inflexible and Temeraire opened fire this morning on Moncrieffe fort, which during the night had been repaired. Three shots greatly damaged the batteries. A signal has just been given to cease firing. The Achilles has just been sighted steaming toward the fleet.

A Flag of Truce Up.

LONDON, July 12.—A despatch from Admiral Seymour sent at 12 o'clock this P. M., says: There was no response to to-day's firing and a flag of truce was hoisted at noon at the arsenal where the minister of war and official Divan are. A gunboat under flag of truce proceeded at once to open communication.

ALEXANDRIA, 1:30 P. M.—A flag of truce is also displayed from town.

A Standard correspondent sends the following: One of the officials from Dervish Pasha who brought a letter from the ministry to Seymour offering to dismount guns, informed me that he and others were not sorry that hostilities were beginning. It was the only way in which an end could be made and the fate of the two parties, viz., the one in favor of the khedive and the other in favor of Arabi Bey and anarchy, could be decided. The officials were conveyed ashore after Seymour had given them his decision in writing.

WOOLWICH, July 12.—War news has given encouragement to a considerable number.

A Times correspondent at Alexandria describing yesterday's bombardment, particularly mentions the deadly effect of the electric broadsides from the ships which attacked the Pharos and Ras-el-Tin forts. The Inflexible being the farthest westward was able to shell the Mex fort with one turret and Ras el Tin fort with the other. After news of the guns being silenced, the men-of-war continued shelling fortifications and used shrapnel, probably at retreating soldiers.

The Battle of Wednesday.

LONDON, July 12.—News special from Alexandria: Before the bombardment recommenced Admiral Seymour sent the Bittern under a flag of truce to demand surrender of the forts for the purpose of avoiding further bombardment, but without result. All reports confirm the previous statement as to the manner in which the Egyptians worked their guns until they were fairly blown from the batteries by explosion of shells. The Monarch fired 200 heavy shells, and 6000 pounds of shot from machine guns. There was some splendid scientific firing, and the official reports of this the first practical trial of modern fighting ships will be records of the utmost value. Some houses in Fort Mex, apparently of concrete, withstands the fire of the heaviest guns of the Monarch.

A correspondent of the Standard telegraphs from on board the Invincible at 8 o'clock, M.: The admiral has summoned captains of the fleet to consultation. Result of deliberations was the decision that the sea was too heavy for serious operations, as the rolling of the ironclads would unsettle their aim and the town might suffer severely from shells flying too high. Admiral Seymour, therefore deferred the intended attack on the Marabout forts but directed the Temeraire and Inflexible to watch Ras-el-Tin and Ada forts. At half past ten the Temeraire signaled that parties of soldiers were at work at the hospital battery near Fort Ada. The two ironclads opened fire. Only six rounds of shot and shrapnel were fired, and all took effect, the practice being excellent. The troops engaged upon the work at once abandoned it and firing ceased. A white flag was now hoisted at the light house. The Bittern was sent inside to inquire as to the intentions of the government. After she had steamed off the Temeraire made the following signal: The body of men we saw working the hospital battery dispersed after our last shrapnel was fired. They took refuge in casemate close by. We saw about 100 men armed with rifles running towards the light house fort. They carried bags. We saw also an Egyptian general, apparently Arabi Pasha surrounded by his staff.

Two 18 ton guns on the Alexandra were disabled, shot having passed through the portholes. At 3 o'clock the Bittern was seen steaming out of the harbor, and as she came out she signalled, "Negotiations have failed. I have accordingly informed authorities on shore that you will engage batteries at half past three."

From this it seems as if officers and staff observed from the hospital battery [illegible] themselves in a [illegible] position and unable to escape hoisted a flag of truce in order to get out of the fire. There was great indignation expressed that the hours should have been wasted in absurdly negotiations while in the meantime the swell had increased so much that the fire of the vessels if hostilities were resumed, would be ineffective. At half past 3 the Bittern again [illegible] [illegible] to string the flag of truce was to gain time. When [illegible] large bodies of troops were evacuating the town as behind the forts going out in full marching order. The ministers had no proposal to make and Lieut. Lambton informed them he had not come to offer conditions but to receive proposals. He told them we did not consider ourselves at war with Egypt but that Mex forts must be occupied by our troops and Fort Marabout be destroyed. They replied that Fort Marabout had already been evacuated but they could give no definite answer as to Mex fort. Finding no agreement was likely and being unwilling to wait further time, Lieut. Lambton returned.

Guns on Fort Mex Spiked.

LONDON, July 12.—Admiral Seymour telegraphs that a party from the Invincible went inland to destroy Fort Mex. Burst three and spiked six guns in the fort. [illegible] severely injured. Lieut. [illegible] and Midshipman Lumsden, slightly.

Alexandria Burning

ALEXANDRIA, July 12, 6:25 P. M.—A Turkish gunboat is anchored off the Ramleh palace to which the khedive removed with his family previous to the bombardment. Signals are now being made to the fleet from the Chiltern to obtain a reply from Admiral Seymour to the message from Queen Victoria enquiring after the wounded. The darkness makes the conflagration in Alexandria appear very vivid. It is supposed the town is being reduced to ashes willfully.

Doomed Alexandria.

ALEXANDRIA, July 12.—A flag of truce is still flying this afternoon and several large fires are observed in various portions of the city.

ALEXANDRIA, July 12.—Suez natives of all classes are sending families into the interior. The government is defraying expenses and the town is quiet.

The Situation at Midnight.

LONDON, July 12.—The following dispatch has been received:

OFF ALEXANDRIA, July 12—Midnight.

The barracks, houses and windmills around Fort Mex have been shattered to pieces. A portion of Ras-el-Tin palace recently inhabited by Dervish Pasha which formed a separate building from the Khedive's residence has been burned to the ground. The light house is still standing, but a number of holes are visible in the masonry and the lantern appears to be injured. The Bittern, after taking Lieut. Lambton on board proceeded to the harbor to learn the object of the flag of truce. Information was conveyed to the commander of the Bittern that Toulba Pasha military commander of Alexandria wished to communicate with Admiral Seymour. Lieut. Lambton replied that as a preliminary condition to further negotiation the forts dominating the entrance to the harbor must be surrendered. Toulba Pasha refused to accept these terms and the Bittern returned to acquaint the admiral with his refusal. It was understood among officers that firing would be resumed at 4 o'clock [illegible] but no order to that effect was given. Egyptians subsequently hoisted a second flag of truce and the Helicon was thereupon sent to ascertain information. The Bittern ascertained that the Khedive was safe having gone with Dervish Pasha to Ramleh palace. The steamship Humber leaves to-night with wounded. A large fire is now visible in the direction of the British consulate.

Preparations for Thursday's Battle.

LONDON, July 12.—A dispatch from Alexandria sent at [illegible] this evening says the vessels of the fleet took up the following positions off the town before sunset: The Sultan off Fort Pharos, Superb, Temeraire, Inflexible, Alexandra and Achilles to the eastward, the Invincible, Monarch, Penelope and all gunboats are in the outer harbor. It is stated and this arrangement was made in order that the vessels be in readiness to shell the forts commanding the town to-morrow in event of failure of negotiations. It is supposed Egyptian troops evacuated the town as fires to-night are assuming large proportions. The town is reported to be almost empty and is believed has been left to wild Arabs possibly to Bedouins to plunder. At sunset the white flag was still flying.

The Times on the Situation

The Times in a leading article this A. M. says Musurus Pasha, Turkish ambassador, had an interview yesterday with Earl Granville and demanded that the bombardment of Alexandria be countermanded. Earl Granville replied that circumstances [illegible] British government to take decisive action and that its decision could not be revoked. We do not hesitate to say that the effect of England's [illegible] produce a most favorable impression both in the public opinion of [illegible]. All European states [illegible] representatives of the powers have already expressed satisfaction at the government's action. There is therefore no ground whatever for the assertion that the action of England [illegible] Europeans as [illegible]. If the porte refuses to intervene in Egypt we shall gladly welcome the assistance of France [illegible] little to hinder us [illegible] [illegible] The most serious feature was that England and France after having acted together in Alexandria [illegible] presenting the ultimatum had parted company and that the separation proved [illegible] is a sign of [illegible] that is not to be [illegible].

Why France did not Co-operate

A correspondent at Paris reports that M. Suez Canal Closed.

LONDON, July 12.—A dispatch from Suez says no merchant vessels have entered the last 48 hours and all ships, including India mail steamers, remain on the roadstead. The whole European population is afloat. The British consul, in pursuance of Admiral Seymour's instructions, has hauled down his flag and gone aboard a gunboat.

Must Travel at Their Own Risk.

LONDON, July 12.—In the commons this afternoon Dilke, under secretary of foreign affairs, said, as far as he was aware, Admiral Seymour had merely cautioned merchant vessels that they would pass through Suez canal at their own risk. He added that he was unaware torpedoes had been laid in the canal.

To be Reopened.

Private advices indicate that the Suez Canal will be reopened to traffic forthwith.

Reserves to be Called Out.

The Times this morning, says it is contemplated to call out 7000 of the army reserve to take the place of unlearned men belonging to the regiments prepared to proceed to Egypt.

Remarkable Achievement.

LONDON, July 12.—The Globe says that during the bombardment yesterday a telephone was attached at Malta to the Alexandria cable, and while it was impossible to communicate verbally, the bombardment was plainly audible at Malta.

Unfavorably Commented On.

MADRID, July 12.—News of the bombardment of Alexandria has caused a profound sensation. The action is unfavorably commented upon in some quarters.

BY ATLANTIC CABLE.

Parliamentary Proceedings.

LONDON, July 12.—In the commons this afternoon Gladstone replying to Gourley, advanced liberal, said that he had communications to other governments in regard to the free navigation of the Suez canal which he thought it his duty to make. Gourley moved adjournment in order to obtain a satisfactory statement.

Sir Wilfred Lawson, radical, seconded the motion declaring that the action of England was atrocious, cruel and cowardly.

Gladstone said that the action of the government had been quite apart from the interest of landholders, adding that it would be unjust on his part to discuss the reasons for the course taken by France. He also said that if the massacre at Alexandria remained unavenged and uninvestigated, the effect would be serious to Europeans. The present Egyptian regimen was one of military violence. The proceedings of Great Britain were not against the people, but against their oppressors.

Dilke denied that Arabi Pasha represented the national movement and denied that yesterday's action was [illegible]. Austria and Germany approved it. European concert would settle the Egyptian question.

In commons the arrears of rent bill was considered in committee. An amendment that relief shall be a loan at 1 per cent, repayable within 15 years was rejected, 266 to 167.

Gen. Skobeleff's Funeral

MOSCOW, July 11.—The emperor has sent Gen. Skobeleff's sister Princess Beloselsky, the following telegram: "I am terribly overcome and grieved by the sudden death of your brother. It is an irreparable loss to the army. All true soldiers will weep for him. It is sad, sad indeed to lose a man so useful and devoted to duty." Crowds have been to see Skobeleff's body at the church, to which it was transferred Saturday evening. Visitors were deeply affected and many eyes were wet. The little church was fragrant with flowers and wreaths. Among the most remarkable tributes of the Moscow military staff of military surgeons was that of the academie d'etat major, being over eighteen feet in circumference and decorated with ribbons of the order of St. George and inscribed "Skobeleff the hero." The first requiem services began yesterday at 10. Archimandrite Athanasius officiated assisted by numerous priests. Prince Dolgorouki, minister of war [illegible], and Barotoff, and a number of Skobeleff's old comrades of Plevna and Geoktepe were present. At 11 mass of requiem was celebrated. Skobeleff's family was represented by the general's brother-in-law, Tchernitzew and Prince Beloselsky who received each fresh arrival. Troops lined the road to Riazan station and a surging crowd one hundred thousand people filled the streets. People were crowded [illegible]. At noon the Grand Duke Nicholas the emperor's uncle, and Grand Duke Alexis arrived from St. Petersburg and were driven to the church [illegible] the whole way. On reaching the building Archimandrite said a few words of farewell and uncovered the body of the hero. It was placed on a bier and borne in solemn procession to Riazan station followed by the two grand dukes, all the generals in Moscow, military band and Prince Dolgorouki and staff. At the station prayers were again said in presence of an immense crowd and then the body having been reverently deposited in a car reserved for it, the train started for Riazan.

CONGRESSIONAL PROCEEDINGS.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Consideration of the river and harbor bill was resumed. Harrison advocated an amendment striking out $500,000 appropriated for reservoirs at the head waters of the Mississippi river and inserting $50,000 for continuing observations and surveys for reservoirs. Amendment rejected.

Consideration of amendments increasing sundry items occupied the remainder of the day. These almost invariably were successful. The bill was reported from committee of the whole and senate vote required upon amendments.

Ingalls thought changes had been so monstrous no member could tell the exact status or total of the bill. He would ask that all amendments be reported separately. He denounced the measure as an annual abuse, scandal and disgrace to American legislation.

McMillan stated the present amount of the bill was $18,247,575 and total items added by committee of the whole $761,000.

Without further action senate adjourned.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—It was agreed to take a final vote on the river and harbor bill and all amendments then pending at 4 o'clock this afternoon, debate in the meantime to be unlimited.

Long discussion arose over the appropriation for public printing, as to whether maladministration or necessity demanded it.

After discussion on the Hennepin canal and Chesapeake and Delaware ship canal amendments the remaining amendments made in committee were adopted in gross and the bill then passed. Yeas 39, nays 21.

The Utah territory bill was taken up and laid over as unfinished business and Morrill gave notice he would to-morrow insist upon precedence for the bill reducing taxation. After executive session senate adjourned.

The Temperance Convention

SAN FRANCISCO, July 11.—At the afternoon session held by the State Temperance convention several resolutions were introduced declaring it to be the sense of those present that no previous party affiliations would induce them to vote for candidates of any political party that did not have in its platform a plank pledging its candidates in favor of a civil day of rest and rigid enforcement of a Sunday or prohibition law. Resolutions also set forth that the convention is willing to await action of existing parties, and should they adopt a prohibition platform the convention would support candidates of the party doing so. Should the republican party fail to comply with the demand of the convention or attempt to straddle the issue, then the convention would put an independent prohibition ticket in the field, having upon it temperance men pledged to enforcement of the Sunday law. Resolutions were warmly debated, extreme prohibitionists urging that an independent ticket be immediately nominated and placed in the field. The more conservative, while maintaining the Sunday law was the only living and important issue now existing between political parties, favored giving republicans an opportunity to come out with a prohibition platform, and should they attempt to evade the issue then prohibitionists of republican affiliations would repudiate the party as had democratic prohibitionists theirs. The resolutions were adopted, the only dissenting voices being those extreme members who did not deem them sufficiently radical. Convention adjourned to call of executive committee.

Locomotives for Portland.

The steamer Umatilla, of the Oregon Improvement company, went over to Oakland to-day and took aboard two locomotives for Oregon. The locomotives have been manufactured by the Baldwin locomotive works of Philadelphia. They are for the Oregon and California railroad, and are the last of a consignment of seventeen which have been taken to Portland by the Umatilla. They are placed on the deck near the after hatch, and blocked and secured in place by heavy timbers and bolts through the deck and iron plating. The two engines and tenders weigh about 150 tons. On the deck, near the forward hatch after loading the hold, is to be placed a large steam excavator, weighing about 50 tons. This is shipped to Portland, and is designed for work on the Northern Pacific railroad. The steamer is loading her lower hold with 800 tons of rails for the same road.

ARIZONA.

Democratic Resolutions.

PHOENIX, July 12.—The democratic territorial convention adopted resolutions condemning the republican party for its government of the territory in harboring hostile savages within its borders and sending federal officers out from distant states, when men of equal intelligence could have been found within the territory; demanding the hostiles be removed to Indian territory, or if that be impracticable, that they be disarmed and turned over to the war department; that the republican policy in treatment of Indians is a fraud and a sham resulting in death of hundreds of persons and destruction of property; that federal officers be taken from permanent residents of the territory; declare in favor of corporate investments and private enterprise; appeal to congress to prevent confirmation of fraudulent Mexican land grants, and declare their unalterable opposition to Chinese immigration.

Indian Outbreak in Arizona.

PHOENIX, A. T., July 12.—The following has been received from Globe: Last Saturday evening eleven men under Capt. Lacey left Globe to intercept hostiles who are now out to prevent them from depredating in the valley. Last Monday the party was surrounded by 50 Indians at Middleton's ranch in Pleasant valley and all of their animals driven off. No one was hurt but the party are working their way back on foot. A representative of the Phoenix [illegible] here, has interviewed Alonzo Bailey, a merchant of Globe who has just arrived. He states there are not less than 150 hostiles out on the war path and have their women and children with them. The hostiles belong to the White Mountain Indians and Mr. Bailey who has had long experience among them says they have gone out to stay. The outbreak has been expected for the last six weeks, and confirms the threat made to Colonel Brackett some time ago by the chief of the White Mountains, that unless they were allowed to go and live in Pleasant valley they would leave the reservation. The first killing in the outbreak was on the 6th inst., and matters appear very serious.

NEVADA.

Comstock Notes.

VIRGINIA, Nev., July 12.—At 11:30 o'clock this morning both pump rods at the Alta mine were broken, one 90 and the other 130 feet below the surface. The shock was so great that it broke in two the bed plate of the main pumping engine. There was a depth of only twelve feet of water on the 2150 level when the accident happened. Water will now rise at the rate of ten feet per hour for a time, the present machinery being too light. It will be necessary to get a new pump which will cost $200,000. Superintendent Boyle will go to San Francisco to-morrow night for the purpose of consulting in regard to what is to be done. Could the west drift have been driven 400 feet further it would have reached the west wall where it was expected to find such features to have encouraged all south end companies.

A FALSE REPORT

We have direct information from Washington that no minority report urging the forfeiture of the Northern Pacific land grant has ever been presented, though frequent assertions that such report has been prepared and submitted, have been made. It is evident, however, that a great effort against the credit and progress of this road has been put forth by its rivals during the present session of congress. Part of the plan was embodied in this assertion that the house committee had divided on the question of land grant—seven of the fifteen members urging its forfeiture, leaving but eight, a bare majority, for the company. Journals controlled in the interest of the existing Pacific railway monopoly have been making the most of this report, using it to produce all the injury they could. The New York World has taken the lead in this work. It published in full the alleged report of the minority, when in fact no such report has ever yet been presented. It is also vehement in its denunciations of ex-Secretary Schurz, alleging, in substance, that through his knavery, while he was secretary of the interior, the Northern Pacific company was enabled to steal millions of acres of the public lands. Of the road itself the World has the hardihood to say, "No political necessity dictated its construction; there were no terminal populations to be linked together; no through trade awaited a channel." These are some of the loose, rash statements made of this great enterprise by one who evidently knows no more [illegible] the moon. There is not a child in the public schools of the nation who does not know each several statement above to be totally untrue. The political necessities of the case have become [illegible] the project was inaugurated. As to terminal populations and through trade the statements are so ludicrously false that they [illegible] a smile rather than provoke refutation.

If there was good reason for building the Union and Central Pacific roads, the Helena, Montana, Herald justly asks, were there not equally good reasons for connecting the Columbia river and Puget sound with the Mississippi and the great lakes? Of all the routes across the continent that of the Northern Pacific is the most natural and necessary for commerce, settlement and protection against foreign or internal foes. There is but one power on land or water that is liable to assail us, and that is England, at the north of us. The Northern Pacific will furnish a barrier of settlement and secure defense where alone it was needed. It furnishes more than a counterpart, commercially or politically, to what England is doing at great cost to accomplish—to block the extension of this country to the north.

As to its effect in the settlement of the Indian question, it [illegible] by any child familiar with figures that, counting land at twice what the government was accustomed to sell it before it adopted the wiser plan of giving it away to have it settled, and estimating the usual cost of carrying the mail by stages and supplies by mule teams, the government will be fully reimbursed within twenty years for its entire outlay. Not only so, but by giving a part the rest became saleable, which before was worthless, and all becomes productive of wealth. Yes it is true that this land grant in its far-reaching consequence has created hundreds of millions of dollars out of nothing.

Has the government been robbed and betrayed by its representatives in this reckless squandering of the public domain? Not unless productive fields are of less value than a waste wilderness. Not unless thrifty, self-supporting, intelligent communities of citizens are less desirable than roving bands of thieving, murdering savages. Not unless quick and cheap transportation are less to be preferred than slow, wasteful, expensive hauling of supplies for hundreds of miles by teams.

It is to be hoped that the managers of this great undertaking, so beneficial to government and people, may also make something handsome for themselves. So far as the early history of this enterprise bears testimony, it does not sustain the assertion that "lobbies and land grabbers have fattened upon it from the days of Cooke to those of Villard." Poor Cooke did not get any fat, and all of the early investors lost heavily. Can human nature show itself more meanly malignant than to envy those who are so generously enriching the whole country, and others much more than themselves, because they also may share in the [illegible] own creation?

Even here in the remote northwest, where the completion of this great road is awaited as the one thing necessary to the life and growth of the country there are those who are so short-sighted as to join in the attacks upon it. This is amazing indeed. It is the thing wanted for our deliverance from the isolation that our country has so long and so hardly borne and from the crushing effect of the existing Pacific railway monopoly. The struggle for it has been hard, but we shall have it a year hence in spite of all the open attempts of rivals, and of all the insidious efforts of those who ought to be its friends.

NO MORE REFUGEES WANTED

The Hebrew emigrant aid society finds itself unable to care for the refugees who are arriving at New York daily, and has so informed the board of emigration. This is the result of several causes. The society claims that the London relief committee has not done its duty in the matter, contenting itself with simply forwarding the refugees to this country in an entirely destitute condition without sending on any money to provide them with homes on their arrival, although the committee has secured a fund of some $85 000 for that express purpose. The New York society has done all that it could, but is now forced to cease its work for lack of funds. It has also been found that most of these refugees are very undesirable emigrants and difficult to be cared for. They seem to have no inclination to work after they arrive here, but are inclined to crowd together in the large cities, refusing to go any distance from the relief society at New York and preferring to depend upon charity as their right, instead of going to work. Only last week a company of four hundred arrived at New York and were found work in the interior of the state. In two days they abandoned the work because they thought it too hard and put back to New York city, begging of the committee to give them money but no more work. The whole four hundred were shipped back to London as "lazy and vicious," and hereafter they will be treated as are all other emigrants landing at Castle Garden, and the steamship companies that bring them be forced to carry them back unless it can be shown that they are not paupers nor likely to become such.

The internal revenue office has issued a statement showing the number of federal licenses to sell liquor in each state and territory in the union. In proportion to population the territories of Arizona and Montana have the largest number of retail saloons each having one for every fifty-one inhabitants. Then follows Nevada with one for every 65 inhabitants, Colorado and Idaho with one for every 76, Wyoming territory with one for every 80, New Mexico with one for every 98 and California with one for every 99. From this point there is a jump to New York, New Jersey and Oregon each of which has one saloon to a few less than 200 inhabitants. The least number of saloons are found in South Carolina where there is one to every 910 inhabitants, Kansas with one to 897, West Virginia, with one to 817, Vermont with one to 812, Maine, with one to 791, North Carolina, with one to 768, Virginia with one to 698, Mississippi with one to 654, Georgia, with one to 612, and Alabama with one to 608. New Hampshire has one to every 376 inhabitants, Massachusetts, one to 245, Rhode Island one to 296 and Connecticut one to 235. Kentucky the birthplace of bourbon whisky has one saloon to every 438 inhabitants. The mining states easily lead all the rest, while the southern states show as a rule either the least proportion, or a proportion far below the average.

The managers of the Canadian Pacific railway claim that their line will be a sharp competitor with the Pacific railways of the United States. From Montreal to Vancouver's Island the distance by this line is put at 2850 while the distance from New York via the Union and Central Pacific roads is 3331 miles. So they say "We shall be able with our better line better grades and freedom from the bonded debt under which the Union and Central Pacific railroads suffer, to compete with the lines to the south of us, and with the aid of fast steamers connecting San Francisco with Victoria, to secure a considerable portion of the trade with San Francisco and the western states." This is certainly claiming enough when it is considered that for a long distance the Canadian Pacific traverses a mountainous region of great difficulty, where the snow fall is excessive and the cold intense. The Northern Pacific has in every respect a more favorable route and will have far less difficulty with the tortuosity of isothermal lines.

The "perfect impartiality" of the San Francisco newspapers is illustrated by the following headlines from the two prominent dailies on July 9th. In reporting a democratic ratification meeting the Call said in its headlines "The Democracy—Rousing Ratification Meeting last Night—The [illegible] Ticket Enthusiastically [illegible]—Speech Delivered by Gen George Stoneman—Letters of Regret from Prominent Democrats—Union Hall Crowded to the Doors—The Speeches Delivered by [illegible]." The Chronicle [illegible] its report of the same meeting as follows: "A Chilly [illegible]—Stoneman's First Appearance on the [illegible]—The Ratification [illegible] Complications—Which nearly Resulted in [illegible]—Dismissal of the [illegible]."

An energetic "liberal" campaign, in imitation of the Mahone movement in Virginia is going on in North Carolina. The republican and democratic bolters have divided the state and [illegible] between them and the combination is very strong. Hancock's majority over Garfield in North Carolina was but 8334 in a total vote of 241,208. The father of the so-called liberal movement in the state is Col William Johnson of Charlotte, an original secessionist and fire-eater and the men who in the days of Kukluxism were leaders of the bands of "night-riders" are foremost with him in the revolt. It is not a promising kind of "liberalism," but the republicans of the state are supporting it en masse in order to get rid as they put it of the tyranny of the democratic party.

The statement of the public debt shows a reduction of nearly $151 000 000 during the fiscal year, which ended 30th June. This year, owing to the probable reduction of taxes and the larger appropriations the decrease in the debt is not likely to exceed $90,000 000 and may fall considerably short of that, although the interest charge will be considerably lighter, and the revenue may continue to exhibit the elasticity of the past year. During last month, as during May, the decrease in continued 6s bearing interest exceeded the total net decrease of the debt, the decrease in these bonds having been about $15 100 000. At the same time there was an increase of about a million in the treasury cash.

Republicanism is spreading in Europe. Norway which was forced into a union with Sweden, under a monarchical form of government, two centuries and a half ago is moving for a separation, and the people want to establish a republic. There are no people in Europe to-day more democratic in spirit and in traditions than the Norwegians, and none better fitted to set up a republican form of government. Their traditions and their old literature, particularly the sagas, have inspired in them a love for freedom and independence and for the ancient democratic methods and forms of government that will sooner or later bear its legitimate fruit.

It may be all very well to talk about the diffusion of intelligence and education in the United States, but once in a while perhaps it may be equally as important to consider the general diffusion of ignorance. Out of our 50,000 000 of population there are 4 204,362 persons above the age of 21 years who cannot write. Of this number 2 056 463 are whites 1,747 950 negroes about 300 000 Indians and 100 000 Asiatics. It is estimated that in almost every state in the union, and in the country as a whole, the balance of political power so far as numbers are concerned, is or can be in the hands of the illiterate voters.

The circuit court room on Monday was the scene of a piece of business unnecessary and very much out of taste. Two men who had been convicted of crime in Marion county and committed for long terms in the penitentiary were brought into court burdened with chains and in convict dress. The effect of this parade quite destroys the presumption of innocence and good character which the law ought to throw about every man brought to the bar of justice. If their arraignment was a matter of necessity, (and this is not clear) the method of it might have been better.

For several weeks the sewers have been clogged by the flood in the river, now rapidly receding. As a result manholes everywhere and connections in houses are emiting noxious air. The council committee on health and police should cause every sewer in the city to be flushed. By employing one or more of the fire engines for that purpose the expense would be very small.

The tug-boat Pioneer now on passage to Portland will arrive in time to take a share of the towage on the bar this season. Her presence will at least establish lower rates than have heretofore ruled. The legislature is expected to reform our pilot laws so that pilotage will forever be distinct from the business of towage.

The Suez canal cost 800 000,000 francs. It was opened for vessels November 16, 1869. The government of Egypt owned a large portion of the stock which England purchased a few years ago.

Trans-continental stock sold in New York, yesterday at 74. The improvement continues in Northern Pacifics, both common and preferred. The former was quoted at 44 and the latter at 83.

THURSDAY MORNING, JULY 13 1882.

CITY.

Old Offender Caught.—Last evening the police captured William Baker, who came up from Astoria yesterday. He is wanted on a charge of stealing $200 from his uncle, Perry G. Baker, who resides on Yamhill street, on the 18th of May last. The money was taken at night from under Mr. Baker's pillow. A warrant was sworn out for young Baker's arrest the day after the larceny and placed in the hands of the police, who learned that he had gone to Astoria. The chief of police at the latter place was telegraphed to arrest him on a charge of larceny, but not knowing the man wanted except through the description sent, a mistake was made and a brother of young Baker was arrested instead of the real culprit. Before this was learned the latter had taken the alarm and could not be found. No doubt thinking the affair had blown over, he returned to Portland, was recognized at once by the police, the old warrant hunted up, and young Baker found himself in jail. His uncle says he will prosecute him to the full extent of the law. The young man says he did not think the amount was so large when he took the money, and he was too frightened to return it after he learned the extent of his crime. Baker was concerned in the wrecking of a train on the Northern Pacific railroad near Kalama, with a young man named Lord, about two years ago, and both were found guilty and sentenced to the penitentiary. Baker succeeded in obtaining a pardon. Lord tried to escape, but was recaptured and is serving out his term.

Skipped With $500.—Tuesday afternoon Chief of Police Lappeus received a telegram from Wyeth, the new railroad station near Mosier's, requesting the arrest of H. W. Wheeler who was accused of running away with $500 belonging to the saw mill firm of Nicholson & Co. A description of the man was also telegraphed. Search revealed the fact that the man had stopped at the St. Charles hotel and left for parts unknown several hours before the dispatch was received. Yesterday, members of the firm arrived here and said that Wheeler had been in partnership with them. They dissolved business relations Saturday at The Dalles. Five hundred dollars was handed to Wheeler with which to return to the mill and pay the hands. He did not go near the mill, but came straight to Portland. Wheeler's record is not the cleanest. He came to the Clarendon about a year ago, from Chicago, with a young woman whom he claimed as his wife. She attempted to commit suicide, with morphine, but prompt medical aid saved her life. She appeared to be a much abused woman, and money was given by the guests and proprietors in sufficient amount to pay her fare home. Four weeks afterwards the innocent woman was arrested in a house of bad repute, charged with stealing a watch. She escaped punishment through the leniency of the woman from whom the watch was taken.

Big Cry and no Wool.—About 7 o'clock last evening an alarm of fire was turned in from box 4, followed immediately by another, and then a third, creating much excitement everywhere. The engines turned out and there was a hurrying of hacks and express wagons loaded with people, in the direction of the alarm. No fire was found, however, and the cause of the alarm was quickly explained. Some little boys playing around the half burned houses on Stark street between Seventh and Eighth, belonging to Whalley & Fechheimer, which were on fire two or three months ago, lighted a small fire which communicated quickly to the charred timbers. A man who saw it rushed to the nearest box on the impulse of the moment and sent in an alarm. When the catch was pulled down it refused to go back and hence the continued ringing. Meanwhile a cool-headed boy put out the fire with a garden hose, and the cause of the great excitement was all over.

Spontaneous Combustion.—Yesterday morning, about ten o'clock, a sudden blaze was discovered on the south awning of the Esmond hotel. The clerk and a few guests lost no time in getting to it. A large bundle of paper and cotton, which had been used for carpet lining, and a few sticks of wood placed on it to hold it to its place, served as fuel when combustion took place. A few buckets of water, administered soon quieted the nerves of the guests and nipped in the bud what would otherwise have been a nice fire item.

Valuable Household Article.—Mr. V. H. Brown is perfecting a "dumb" piano—simply a keyboard on which pupils may practice, especially finger exercises, without the accompanying noise. Now if Mr. Kinross will only get up a dumb throat and give one to every mother that thinks her daughter a second Patti and keep one at the theater to use occasionally at concerts, the people of Portland, in mass meeting assembled, will rise up, crown them with chaplets of laurel and call them blessed.

Wants to Find her Sister.—Mrs. Charles Jackson, of Batavia, New York, writes to the chief of police of this city, asking to deliver an enclosed letter to her sister, Mrs. Charles Hoyt. Mrs. Jackson thinks her sister is in Portland, but is not sure whether she now bears the name of Hoyt. The writer is very anxious to learn her sister's whereabouts, and her present circumstances. The letter mentioned may be had by the person to whom it is addressed upon application at police headquarters.

Awarded to Simmons.—Yesterday afternoon after hearing arguments by O. P. Mason and W. Hudson Grant for the San Francisco detectives, and by A. H. Tanner and W. A. Daly for Constable Simmons, the County Court awarded to Simmons the $1000 offered for the arrest and conviction of the murderers of J. N. Brown. Counsel for the California officers have declared the intention to appeal, and Simmons was required to give bonds to abide by the decision of higher courts.

Another Importation.—Dr. James Withycombe of this city, has just received an American Merino buck from Mr. G. B. Bothwell of Breckenridge, Mo., who is one of the most noted breeders of Delaine Merinos in the United States. This sheep has a very superior quality of wool, of long staple and very fine fibre, a dense fleece, which will yield a large percentage of cleaned wool. Dr. Withycombe is doing much to improve the wool of the Willamette valley.

Fire Engine Overboard.—One of the flat cars thrown into the river a day or two since near Mosier's had aboard a new Silsby engine for the city of Walla Walla, together with hose carriage and appurtenances, all of which went to the bottom of the Columbia, where the water is about fifty feet deep. The machine was valued at $4000, and the manufacturers' contract required them to deliver it at the destination. Efforts are being made to recover the engine.

Additional Accommodations.—In anticipation of a large crowd on the baseball excursion to Oregon City next Sunday, the management of the Stars have secured a barge in addition to the steamer McCully, and dancing will be had on board, the music to be furnished by Varney & Bray's band. Tickets, fifty cents for the round trip, either from Vancouver or Portland, including the dancing.

Portland's New Dredge.—The machinery for the city's dredge is progressing rapidly at Honeyman's foundry. The boilers are nearly ready for the tubes, and the boring of the cylinders is about completed. The building of the all ought not to take longer than sixty days, and the probabilities now are that the dredge will be completed in time to be of service this season.

Serious Accident.—Yesterday morning a daughter of Mrs. John VanBeurden, aged three years, fell down stairs into the cellar, striking her leg just below the knee cap on the edge of a broken bowl, cutting a gash to the bone. The tendon was severed and there is danger that the child will be crippled for life. Dr. Saylor was called and dressed the wound.

Resigned.—Yesterday in the United States Circuit Court the resignation of Mr. Wm. Hoffmann, of Jacksonville, U. S. commissioner for southern Oregon, was presented, and regretfully accepted. Mr. Hoffman was appointed to the office September 16, 1867, and for fifteen years has faithfully performed its duties. His successor has not yet been named.

Refused a Liquor License.—An application was made in the county court yesterday by Robert Khun for a license to sell liquor in Grant precinct, near the race course. A remonstrance was also presented, signed by a larger number of names than were attached to the petition for the license, hence the application was refused.

Failures in Six Months.—R. G. Dun & Co. report failures in the three months ending June 30: Oregon 12, liabilities $94,000; Washington territory 2, liabilities $26,000. In the previous quarter, ending March 31, failures were as follows: Oregon 10, liabilities $43,000; Washington territory 4, liabilities $19,700.

Forest Fires.—All day yesterday the eastern and western horizons were obscured by smoke from fires in the Cascade and Coast range mountains, and during the afternoon the sky over-head was hidden. The smoke will probably continue and grow denser until the next rain.

The Steamers.—The Columbia arrived down at 5 A. M. yesterday and crossed out at 10:30. The Oregon was sighted coming in at 7 P. M. and was expected to arrive at 8.

Lecture This Evening.—At the church corner Washington and Third streets. The pastor, Dr. Lindsley, will conduct the meeting. Strangers are cordially invited.

INTELLIGENTLY EXPLAINED.

Reasons for the War Between Egypt and England,

TOLD IN EVERY-DAY LANGUAGE.

Our New Young Man Relieves Two Enquiring Minds on the Cause of the War Begun at Alexandria.

It was about half past one o'clock yesterday afternoon, shortly after The Oregonian corps had reported for duty. They were finishing the last box of a large lot of three-for-a-dollar cigars, won on the June election, and the reporters were sighing over the prospects of awfully hot weather in which to make customary rounds. The subject under discussion was a plan by which each member of the staff could go to the races every day next week, take in Hazel Kirke and the circus in the evening, and get the work done besides. The colored bell-boy announced two men in the reception room, and when asked why he didn't bring the cards, answered, with a grin, "Golly, I don't think dey knows what cahds is." They were admitted and provided with seats on the musical editor's table, which has not been in use lately. The man with the white slouch hat and a whip said he made a living hauling wood from the Cornell road, and had been a subscriber to the weekly for seven years. The second visitor said he worked at odd jobs about town, and was now shovelling smoke at the gas factory in East Portland and read The Oregonian every day at the brewery. What they wanted to know was the reason for all this trouble at Alexandria, and who was to blame, and wouldn't we tell them.

"Well," said the news editor, "it's the darndest mixed up fight on record. It will take all day to explain it."

"Yes," chipped in the city editor, "you'd better go to the library and get Mr. Oxer to select the histories bearing on the case. The expense is only a dollar per month and the library is just a block up street."

The visitors looked around the room appealingly, saw every one turn away, and they started to go. Our new young man, who is a kind-hearted sort of an person, told them to come back and he would try to explain. "The fact is," he went on to say, "the Egyptians under the leadership of Arabi Bey are fighting for freedom. In other words, they want to raise Egypt from a dependent to an independent nationality."

"Who's the boss of them now?" asked the wood hauler.

"The Khedive is the alleged ruler and he stands in with Turkey. The Egyptians are nominally a nation by themselves, but the emperor of Turkey dictates to the Khedive."

"Is this keedeve, or keedive, or whatever you call him, elected by the people, the same as Bushwiler was elected justice of Gooch?" asked the smoke-shoveler.

"No, he is a sort of a successor to Mehemet Ali, who run for viceroy in 1806 on the independent ticket and was elected by 450,000 majority."

"What's England taking a hand for? I can't see how it's her row," said both questioners in chorus.

"She has financial interests. Some years ago English capitalists loaned the government of Egypt large sums to pay their officers, to give ball and champagne suppers and—"

"Every once in a while they would have cold turkey for lunch," broke in the sporting editor.

"And to improve their rivers, and build wagon roads, and pay pensions," continued the young man, not noticing the interruption. "And England don't want her capitalists to lose their money. If Arabi Bey succeeds in his revolution, his government would probably repudiate the debt, just like a large proportion of democrats, including many in Portland, wanted the United States to go back on her debt and abused the republican party for being honest. You see, Egypt is hard up—can't pay her debts—is in the hands of a receiver, so to speak. England is the creditor, and the Khedive is a kind of a constable, who, in addition to his duties of seeing that the Turkish laws are obeyed, keeps an eye on the debtors and won't let them skip the country and beat Queen Victoria's subjects out of their money. He's at the gang plank of every steamer."

"Does Turkey take a hand in the scrimmage?" was the next inquiry.

"I should blush to murmur," said the walking cyclopedia. "Of course she'll take a hand. The Khedive at least pretended to be loyal to Turkey, and she'll have to stand by him. He can't do anything alone. The whole army, from major generals down to laundresses, has joined Arabi Bey."

"Which'll lick?" The questioners now were getting bold.

There was silence for a moment, broken by the sporting editor, who answered:

"Well, if it were Turkey alone, pools ought to sell about $30 to $40 on the Egyptians. They're long distance, gamey animals, from long distance, gamey stock, and they're just as footy at the end of a race as they are when they go in, and it don't make a bit of difference how hard the track is, and it's all the same to them if there's a two mile dash every day. But when they've got to fight Turkey and England and France, the man that buys pools on Arabi Bey ought to have big odds, say $80 to his $11.50."

"How does France come in?" was the next query.

"The canal was built by French capitalists," answered the n. y. m.

The new young man resumed: "She's part owner in the Suez canal."

"Isn't she sole owner?" asked the news editor.

"How is that, Mr. Smalley?" asked the new young man of the New York Tribune's representative, who had dropped in to get some facts about the coming crop of Canada thistles for his paper.

"It was one of the great schemes of Napoleon, and for many years the project of a canal between the Red and Mediterranean seas, attracted considerable attention in Europe. In 1852 de Lesseps undertook to form a joint stock company to cut a ship canal, and two years afterward obtained a franchise from the pasha of Egypt conferring upon him the exclusive privilege of carrying out the project. Work was commenced in 1859 by a company with $40,000,000 capital, and the canal finished and opened for traffic November 16, 1869. A few years ago England bought a half interest in the canal."

"Now, you see," continued our bureau of information, "France has to step in to protect her interest in the canal. Here's the whole thing in a nutshell: Two or three hundred thousand rampant Egyptians fighting for liberty under good leadership; Turkey trying to maintain her nominal dominion; England trying to save her money and not caring a cent who runs the Egyptian government; France protesting against England closing the canal, and not caring a cent for England, Turkey or Egypt; and the United States saying if any man fires at the American flag, we'll—we'll assess the treasury clerks and hire a man to go over and tell them to stop."

The cordwood merchant thanked every one kindly and promised to each of the three married men on the staff a load of nice seasoned oak—for $5 50 per cord, delivered.

Dr. Rafferty set the broken bone, being compelled to remove a portion of it. Fitzgerald was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital.

NOTES FROM THE FRONT.

[FROM THE OREGONIAN'S LOCAL CORRESPONDENT.]

CABINET LANDING, July 9.

Mrs. Dr. Burton has been quite sick for several days but is now convalescent.

J. Lommells had the great toe of his right foot nearly cut off by a heavy tie falling on his foot.

Mr. E. J. Singer, formerly of Dayton, W. T., is going to try frontier life, and has accepted a position with the company on the road.

One of the engineers was stopped a few evenings since by two foot-pads, but he put spurs to his trusty cayuse and got out of the way.

I advise correspondents to these parts to address their letters via Ainsworth, W. T., there being a Cabinet Landing on the eastern division.

Indians on the trail leading to Missoula stopped a traveler not long since, and at the muzzles of Winchesters demanded his whisky. They took that and were satisfied.

Mr. W. B. King of the firm of Dubois & King is at Cabinet looking after the business interests of the firm. D. & K. are doing an immense business along the line and employ a small army of men.

James McCarroll, a teamster on the N. P. line, had both bones of his right arm broken above the wrist by jumping from his wagon. Dr. Burton, assisted by Emil Bories, reduced the fracture and the patient is resting easy.

Prof. Felch, principal of the Cheney academy, is climbing cliffs and ravines searching for minerals to supply his cabinet. Mr. Felch is quite a mineralogist and will find a good field here for specimens. Traces of silver and gold have been discovered at different places and some one may yet strike it rich.

News has just reached here that a serious fracas had taken place at Rock Island between two gamblers, over a debt growing out of a game of cards, resulting in one of the combatants being stabbed in the neck and body. The wounds are considered dangerous. As usual in such cases, the assailant fled, and his whereabouts is unknown.

Our mails are irregular. There being no established office here we must trust to fate alone. Letters mailed at Portland in April are just making their appearance by way of Missoula. Not long since a number of letters came by that route, the majority having been burnt. Wells Fargo & Co. is the only safe route through which to receive and by which to send.

SAD BURIAL BY MOONLIGHT.

[REGULAR CORRESPONDENCE OF THE OREGONIAN.]

YAKIMA CITY, July 7.

A few evenings since, just as the moon was making her appearance in the eastern horizon, I beheld the sad spectacle of a burial by moonlight. Only those who have witnessed such a scene have any conception of the feeling which it imparted. Foremost in the procession was a farmer's lumber wagon conveying the corpse, by the side of which were seated six comrades of the deceased. Following, were a number of other wagons filled to their fullest capacity with men, and in the rear were quite a number of ladies on horseback. The black van moved slowly up Main street and halted at the cemetery, where with appropriate ceremonies the remains were deposited by sorrowing friends in their last resting place. Not a companion of early youth nor a relative was present, but kind friends and fellow laborers laid the body to rest. The deceased was Samuel Cameron, of Nova Scotia, who was in the employ of the Northern Pacific R. R. Co. on the log drive down the Yakima river. The circumstances of his death are as follows: One day last week when the rear of the drive was about two and one-half miles below the city, one of the bateaux containing twelve men attempted to go over the rapids. The load was too great for rough water, and the bateau swamped. Nine of the men swam to shore. Samuel Cameron and Edward Cote were drowned. E. Cameron was rescued, but in an insensible condition, and from the effects of the accident he has since died. The body of Samuel Cameron was found about four miles below where the accident occurred. Work was suspended on the drive and about two hundred fellow workmen paid their last tribute to his memory. The remains of Edward Cote have not been found. I learn that the loggers have circulated a subscription among themselves and raised six hundred dollars in money, with which they propose to erect a handsome monument to the memory of their departed comrade.

YAQUINA BAY NOTES.

[FROM THE OREGONIAN'S LOCAL CORRESPONDENT.]

NEWPORT, July 8th.

Messrs. Wm. Hague and Wallace Nash visited the bay last week.

The Sea Foam crossed out on the 4th, bound for San Francisco.

There are many visitors at the bay now; most of them have camped.

Parker's saw mill, at Oneatta, is shut down for two weeks to give time to clear the yard.

The Kate and Ann crossed out on the 5th, bound for Portland via Siuslaw, and expects to return immediately.

The people are anxiously awaiting the arrival of the steamers that are being built in your city to ply between here and Portland.

The 4th of July was celebrated here in the usual manner. The town was full to overflowing with people, and the ball given by the Newport string band was a grand success, except that the hall was too crowded.

Your correspondent has been informed that Jas. Brassfield has negotiated for the valuable property known as Seal Rocks, eight miles from this place on south beach. This is a valuable purchase for Mr. B. as it will be a great place of resort.

Our local paper, the Yaquina Post, failed to put in an appearance last week. Cause, the editor moved his office and family up to the proposed railroad town site, being unable to get a dwelling or office suitable in Newport. There will be no more half-size Posts.

YAKIMA COUNTY NEWS.

[FROM THE OREGONIAN'S LOCAL CORRESPONDENT.]

YAKIMA CITY, July 6.

I learn from the time keeper of the drive, who was in the city last evening, that a man named Martin, one of the drivers on the river, was drowned yesterday. I have been unable to get the full particulars.

Coal mines were discovered this week within 25 miles of Yakima City, by James Simmons. He brought quite a quantity of it in his wagon and had it tested in the blacksmith shops here to-day. It was found to be good anthracite coal. The vein where it crops out is about two feet thick, and wagons can now drive within a quarter of a mile of it.

Adison O. Kessling, whose name is as familiar in our courts as that of the Turk family in Portland, was again arrested this week on two charges, one of stealing a horse of Henry C. Robinson, and again for stealing and butchering a steer belonging to Nicholas McCoy. He was bound over under bonds of $500 for each offense. Being unable to furnish the same he now languishes in jail.

The Revolver With Which Garfield was Shot.

Chicago Tribune.

When Guiteau was arrested all the money he had was 10 cents. His entire wealth, consisting of a silver dime, has been kept by the U. S. district attorney since, as has also the British bull dog revolver he used. It has not yet been decided what shall be done with the revolver, though it is probable Col. Corkhill will keep it. There were several offers for it. Sergeant Boston Corbett, who shot J. Wilkes Booth, the assassin of Lincoln, received several offers for the revolver he used on that occasion. The highest was from Barnum—$150. As high as $1000 has been offered for Guiteau's revolver. O'Meara, the dealer who sold the revolver to Guiteau, has never sold a bull-dog pistol since, and will not allow any to come into his store. Coup, the circus man, has bought the pistol that Guiteau first had and returned to get a stronger shooting pistol, and it now forms a part of his Garfield museum.

Well Enough Said.

Philadelphia Times.

Before Guiteau is forgotten it might be well to recall some of the eloquent articles written last summer about the results of the system of spoils. Guiteau was a partisan as well as an office-seeker. If he had ever got an office, he would have believed in paying his assessment and making other people pay theirs. A natural development from the mode of political thought to which he had been accustomed produced that morbid state of mind that made him a murderer. Now that we have hanged Guiteau it is time to determine whether we shall so reform our administrative system that it shall not produce any more Guiteaus.

Mrs. Elizabeth Snyder, an old resident of The Dalles, died on the 7th inst., aged 48 years.

Father Harmon has returned to his home in The Dalles, after a sojourn of 15 months in Canada, in excellent health.

Twenty-two emigrant wagons passed through Baker City one day last week. The travelers were from Nebraska and were bound for Washington territory.

The Second Adventists are holding a tent meeting at The Dalles. The congregations are large and the discourses consist in expounding the prophecies of Daniel and doctrinal points as viewed from the standpoint of this denomination of Christians.

Washington Territory.

Colfax has purchased six acres of land lying directly east of the town site for a cemetery.

Seattle has contracted to pay $149 per acre for clearing the city cemetery.

In Jackson's camp on the Skagit, above Mount Vernon, they have at present employed about 23 men and 15 yoke of oxen, and make an average daily cut of 40,000

It has been practically demonstrated that the cottonwood timber growing along the banks of the Skagit river, is the only suitable timber of which to make sheet barrels. This timber will bear a good price in the near future.

There is more shipping at Port Blakely at present than at any other time since the mill was started. On Saturday evening there were fifteen large seagoing vessels in port, and this number was increased by the arrival of the ship Prussia, and one or two other vessels on Sunday.

On San Juan island are now several kilns, and 40 men at work. They are driven to their utmost capacity to supply the extraordinary demand at present made upon them. It is the sole source of supply of British Columbia, Seattle and the lower Sound, and the principal source for the country from Seattle south to the California line.

The First Baptist church, assembled in council at Seattle, by unanimous vote, requested that Mrs. Mary C. Jones be ordained a minister of the gospel, and a number of the ministers' association were requested to join with them in the examination of Mrs. Jones, and the examination proved entirely satisfactory. The ordination accordingly took place, Judge Greene officiating.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

It is stated at the general land office at Washington that more than 1300 patents for mineral lands will have been issued during the current year ending June 30, while for the year ended June 30, 1881, 738 patents were issued.

Garibaldi made preparations at Caprera for his own cremation. The pyre was in a rocky corner, overhung with stunted trees, and was made with bars of iron resting on roughly-constructed pillars of syenite, and filled with wood said to have been cut with the general's own hands.

In view of the returns from Oregon the Mobile Register (democratic) warns its party that "three electoral votes and a United States senator, in the face of the Chinese question, is enough to stop funny remarks for a while and to put the democratic party to the solemn duty of getting to work."

David Thomas, the father of the anthracite iron business in the United States, died of pneumonia at his home in Catasauqua, Pa., Tuesday, the 20th ult., in the 88th year of his age. In 1840 he put into blast the first furnace which successfully smelted iron ore by the use of anthracite coal with the hot blast.

Poor Jeff Davis will go down to history as the hero who ran away from danger in woman's clothing. The last fling at him is, by the Mail and Express, in this bit of news: Oscar Wilde has gone to Beauvoir to visit Jeff Davis. Perhaps he wants to convince Jeff that knee breeches and silk stockings are more æsthetic than petticoats."

The committee appointed a year ago in Boston to raise a fund for the relief of the widow of John Brown, met on the 27th ult. and voted to place the money already raised, and that which may be raised, in the hands of the trustees, who shall use the income for the benefit of any member of the Brown family who may seem to them to need it.

The New York Hour exclaims vehemently, "There are too many broken down clergymen in our colleges." The trouble lies in the colleges themselves. If the many small colleges scattered over the country were consolidated and made colleges in reality as well as in name, they would be able to call to their faculties men of a higher standard.

The Boston Advertiser perceives a severe test of American patriotism in the fact that at the recent sale of coins and medals in New York a medal struck in honor of John C. Heenan sold for forty-two cents, while one commemorating the battle of Bunker Hill brought only thirty cents. Both may have sold for their value as old copper, however.

Mrs. Kate Chase-Sprague, who is spending a portion of the summer at her old home, Edgewood, with her daughters, counts among her treasures her father's family bible. It contains the entry of her birth, Aug. 16, 1840, with the remarks, in Mr. Chase's hand-writing: "The babe is pronounced pretty. I think it quite otherwise. It is, however, well formed, and I am thankful. May God give the child a good understanding, that she may keep His commandments."

WOOLEN MANUFACTURES.

Chicago Tribune.

A bulletin from the census bureau furnishes some particulars of the census returns concerning manufactures from wool in this country during the year ending May 31, 1880. Under the head of hosiery and knit goods are included woolen, cotton and mixed hosiery, and cotton, woolen and mixed knit goods.

The total number of manufacturing establishments was 2884, of which 1990 were engaged in making woolen goods, but of these establishments 570 were only carding mills, 233 used not over 5000 pounds of wool each, and 156 used from 5000 to 10,000 pounds of wool each.

The other establishments were 195 making carpets other than rag; 26 were working felt goods, 76 making worsted goods, 49 making wool hats, and 354 making hosiery and knit goods. The total capital invested is put down at $159,644,270.

The total number of hands employed was 160,988, of whom 75,334 were males over 16 years, 66,505 were females over 15 years, and 19,159 girls and boys. The total amount of wages paid was $47,389,618, making the average wages to the persons employed $206 a year for each person, an average of less than $4 a week, and less than 67 cents a day. Included in these ages are the salaries paid to presidents, managers, superintendents, and other high priced employes.

Of the wool purchased by the mills, 73,200,038 pounds was foreign wool imported by the woolen mills. Of this foreign wool no less than 34,008,252 pounds were consumed by the American carpet manufacturers who enjoy a protective tax of 80 per cent on all the carpets they make under the pretense that they buy American wool. The quantities of wool they use in the making of protected carpets are thus stated:

Foreign wools, pounds, (for carpets)	34,008,252
American wool, pounds (for carpets)	2,620,318

American farmers and wool-growers can thus discover how much the tax on carpets protects American wool.

The materials used by the woolen manufacturers during the year were in pounds:

Scoured wool	169,913,007
Shoddy	54,011,298
Cotton on cards	62,191,547
Cotton warp	28,774,149
Value of the wool	$97,081,004
Value of the other materials	66,433,195
Total value of materials	164,114,799
Value of products	267,699,504
Cost of labor and materials	211,295,417
Excess of products over cost of labor and materials	56,404,087

It must be remembered that these manufacturers reap a protective tax of from 50 to 110 per cent. on all these goods, under the pretense that they distribute the money among their operatives, the actual wages paid being an average of $4 per week to each employe. The expenditure of the mills for wages is about one dollar out of every five dollars expended. So that protection, even if fairly divided between labor and other expenses, is only in the proportion of one dollar paid to labor to every five dollars for capital and the other expenditures.

The Evangel a Failure.

Victoria Colonist, July 9.

This new steamer, built on the Sound and sent up north with the American mails, could not get far past Nanaimo on her first trip to Wrangel and Sitka. She was unable to make headway against a slight breeze and consequently put back for Nanaimo, from which place a telegram was forwarded to Port Townsend for some other steamer to be dispatched to take along the mails. It was expected that the Tacoma would perform be service, but word came back that she was not available. Probably for a suitable consideration the Idaho, now on her way north, would take them along. The captain has reported that it would take him a month to get up under favorable circumstances. It seems that there is something wrong with her machinery—not put in right or altogether inadequate to drive the vessel.

When Gen. Grant was pulled out of the wreck on the New Jersey Southern railroad the other day he quietly remarked to those who were expressing their solicitude for his welfare, "Oh! I'm all right; I don't get hurt in this sort of thing."

It is announced by telegraph that the Malley boys will spend the summer at Saratoga. Now is the time to organize a rifle club in Saratoga.—Chicago Tribune.

THE HAMILTON SALE.

A Profligate Duke Auctions off the Heirlooms of His House.

New York World.

London, June 15.—Yesterday and to-day there has been a great crowd flocking to Messrs. Christie's room in King street, St. James', drawn thither by a desire to inspect the first part of the far-famed treasures of the Hamilton palace, now to be dispersed to all parts of the civilized world, in obedience to the orders of the present Duke of Hamilton. In Rome, as many of your readers are aware, there are palaces filled with treasures of art, gathered together century after century, and guarded with proud and jealous care by their present possessors. But few if any of these palaces contain objects of greater value or interest than those which were lately accumulated in the princely house of the Hamiltons in Lanarkshire, and which are at this moment in the custody of the auctioneers. Many of the Hamiltons have held high positions in the state—they have been ministers, plenipotentiaries, and ambassadors, and it sometimes fell to their lot to receive presents from the monarchs near whom they lived as marks of the respect which their characters inspired. All these presents—family heirlooms, which almost any man, no matter how little family pride he might have in his composition, would consider it something like a sacrilege to part with—are now to be knocked down to the highest bidder. Thus it is with so many famous collections. Generation after generation is devoted to the work of enriching them, they become like so many visible land marks in a nation's history, besides recalling all that is great or noble in family records—and then there comes a reckless, profligate, or besotted heir, who sets no store by them except in so far as they supply the means of enabling him to indulge in his mad passions or to repair the ruin in which his vices have already encompassed him. No one of ordinarily decent feeling can regard without disgust the conduct of a man who, with an income of over $100,000 a year, has overwhelmed himself with debt to such an extent that every book, picture, plate, chair or memorial belonging to his ancestors must now be bundled into the auctioneer's room. It is true that the present Duke of Hamilton knows and cares nothing about art in any form, and that for the relics of his ancestors he has about as much respect as Charles Surface had for the family pictures. "When a man wants money," says Sheridan's scapegrace, "where the plague should he get assistance, if he can't make free with his own relations?" And that, no doubt, is the philosophy of the foolish and worthless personage whom fate has made the duke of Hamilton. In one of the cases in Messrs. Christie's rooms yesterday I saw a small portrait in an old gilt frame. It is thus described in a catalogue: "Lot 61. Holbein. Portrait of a knight of the garter, small whole length, with a dog, inscribed 'ætatis suæ 60, Anno Domini 1535,' six inches by four inches. Presented by Charles I. to the Marquis of Hamilton. The king's brand is on the back, both as prince and king." The least spark of that sentiment which is supposed to be strong in the breasts of all gentlemen would have saved this relic of a brave and ill-fated man from the auctioneer's hammer. In days when chivalry was not yet dead there was a Marquis of Hamilton who carried the sword of state before King Charles I. on this coronation, and who remained true to his master's fortunes to the last. He led the army which fought so hard at Preston in 1648, and in 1649 his head was cut off in the palace yard. It was this marquis to whom the ill-fated king gave the little picture which I noticed under the glass case yesterday, and one can easily imagine with what interest and respect every Hamilton since, down to the person who at present bears the title, has gazed upon this memorial to fidelity and valor. But a man who was the associate of the Pelham-Clintons, and who was one of the leaders of the set which brought the marquis of Hastings to ruin and the grave, is not very likely even to understand the feelings which led the marquis of two centuries and a half ago to be faithful to his trust and to remember the honor of his race.

This sale, or the circumstances connected with it, has apparently scandalized even the most easy-going members of the duke of Hamilton's class. When a man is forced by unavoidable misfortunes to sell every stick and scrap possessed by his ancestors, one may say that it is a great pity, and pass on. But in this case an utterly reckless and unscrupulous man has plunged into difficulties, not one of which is free from discredit, and not one of which might not have been avoided. I have heard many estimates given of the amount of the duke's debts, and there cannot be the slightest doubt that it must be placed at between two and three millions sterling. The notorious M. Padwick was one of his chief creditors, and the estate, of course, holds him in the same position. The sum I have mentioned is prodigious, but so has been the duke's capacity for getting rid of money. How, it may be asked, can such debts as his be incurred? The fact is that no device ever yet discovered for accumulating debt has been neglected by the present duke. Horse racing and other gambling debts account for a good deal of the money, and usurious loans account for almost as much. And the noble edifice which the duke has reared has been many years in hand, for he was first really "hard hit," as the saying goes, at the time when the late (and last) marquis of Hastings made his final chute into the abyss of disaster. The present duke of Hamilton did not end his life at that time, unfortunately for those who are to succeed him, and every year which has passed away since has seen the mountain of his liabilities grow higher and blacker than ever. He expects to raise, I am told, at least half a million by this sale, which is to continue till the 20th of July—not including the books, which are to be disposed of by another firm of auctioneers. But half a million will not pay a fourth or fifth part of his debts, if report speaks truly. His creditors will necessarily take the lion's share of the spoil, but probably the duke will get "something to go on with," and to accomplish that object there is nothing which he would not make away with, as he has now sufficiently shown. As for the hands into which most of these treasures are destined to fall, the gossip of the auction room is that Americans are to be very large buyers. I cannot tell on what foundation this belief rests, but it is certainly entertained by the auctioneers themselves, and it must be presumed that they know something about the matter.

The London Truth says of Sara Bernhardt on the occasion of her reappearance on the London stage: "I am glad to find that marriage has improved the erratic Sara in several ways. She looks better, she acts better and she behaves better than she ever did before. The solemn-looking Greek gentleman, by force of will or influence, has succeeded in taming a madcap. I believe it is perfectly true that this love sprang, if not from fear, at least from nervous constraint under a stronger mental organization. 'He is the first man,' said Sara to a friend, 'who ever made love to me of whom I felt afraid. He can make me do what he likes.' I can believe this, for it is true to human nature. Women of a highly nervous organization and imaginative temperament like to be 'oppressed' as much as any Celt. In secret they love the man of whom they are most in awe, not the man who is most tenderly adulatory and submissive. I am glad to note such an improvement in the acting of Sara Bernhardt, though the peculiar subtlety of her art is double-Dutch to nine-tenths of her audience. America very nearly ruined this lady as an artist and an actress, as it tried to ruin Patti, Nilsson and scores of others. Chas. Kean called it the 'grave of talent,' and he was right."

The grave of Lydia Maria Child in the old moss-grown cemetery at Wayland Centre, Mass., is marked only by a plain white marble slab, bearing her name in full, age, date of death, and the words, "You call us dead. We are not dead, but truly living now."

IF

If men cared less for wealth and fame
And less for battle-fields and glory
If writ in human hearts a name
Seemed better than a song and story,
If men, instead of nursing Pride
Would learn to hate and abhor it,
If more relied on Love to guide
The world would be the better for it

If men dealt less in stocks and lands
And more in bonds and deeds fraternal
If Love's work had more willing hands
To link this world to the supernal
If men stored up Love's oil and wine
And on bruised human hearts would pour it
If "yours" and "mine" would once combine
The world would be the better for it

If more would act the play of Life
And fewer spoil it in rehearsal
If Bigotry would sheathe its knife
Till good became more universal
If Custom, gray with ages grown
Had fewer blind men to adorn it
If talent shone for Truth alone
The world would be the better for it.

If men were wise in little things,
Affecting less in all their dealings
If hearts had fewer rusted strings
To isolate their kindly feelings
If men, when Wrong beats down the Right
Would strike together and restore it
If Right made Might in every fight
The world would be the better for it

A NIGHT IN AN OLD MANSION.

BY M T

"Whether there is any truth in spiritualism or not," said Dr Warner, "what I beheld with my own eyes cannot be accounted for by any philosophical cause It was my brother's own handwriting and he received his death wound just as the medium personating him seemed to be afflicted

"Of course " said I, "the man had employed agents to watch you during your stay in New York and without remembering it you revealed your whole family history"

"Scoff as you may," returned my companion, "my mind is still exceedingly puzzled It is a mystery which I cannot solve."

A conversation of which the above is a specimen occurred between Dr Warner and myself as we passed down York river, Va., in a rowboat at the hour of ten at night. We had been spending the evening at the house of Col. ——, a neighbor of the doctor, and the father of two very interesting daughters and we were now on our way to my friend's bachelor home, situated on the river a few miles below

"Hark!" said my companion, resting on his oars.

A voice came out of the darkness "Is Dr Warner in that boat?"

"Yes," was the reply "What [illegible]"

"Please come on shore, Mrs. [illegible] is very sick."

"Well, Henry," said my friend, "that is no disembodied spirit that calls us this time, but it places you under the necessity of spending the night alone at Burleigh where, according to tradition the ghost of one of my respected ancestors occasionally walks of nights. Your materialist creed may be of service to you, after all I shall get you to take the boat down Here is the key of the front door You will find a cold ham and chicken on the sideboard I hope to join you in the morning

Bidding my friend good night, I proceeded down the river and landed at Burleigh without accident

At that late hour all the servants had retired to rest. There was no sign of life anywhere, and the place wore a dreary, somber aspect. The trees of the avenue sighed mournfully to the passing breeze the light waves of the river beat with melancholy cadence upon the beach

The Burleigh house was more than two hundred years old and was of the style of architecture prevalent at the time of its construction—the doors and windows dark and narrow, the hall lined with gloomy oak wainscoting the stairs steep and perilous

The door grated harshly on its hinges as I opened it and the echo of my own footsteps sounded ominously as I groped my way through the dark hall

I found a candle with difficulty, struck a light and after doing full justice to the viands on the sideboard, I entered the library and lit the astral lamp there, with the intention of reading an hour or two before going to bed

The library was in keeping with the rest of the house, originally dark and gloomy, but made more so by the effects of time

On the wall over the tall mantel piece facing me where I sat at a table near the center of the room hung the portrait of Col William Warner, in his continental uniform It represented a man with a look that was almost ferocious. His stern gaze was fixed upon me as if he regarded me as an intruder upon his privacy

The book that I opened happened to be Judge Edmunds work on Spiritualism Strange that this subject should again present itself to me But I opened the book and soon became absorbed in the strange experiences recorded there Are these the savings of a madman or —Suddenly I was startled by a rushing sound that came from the direction of the wall opposite Instinctively I turned my eyes toward the portrait Is the old officer about to step down from the wall?

Again the sound came, and this time I discovered that it was made by swallows in the chimney

I read on of how the author at first skeptical, received evidence that he could no longer doubt How the spirits assaulted him in bed at night How they convinced him by sturdy blows of their existence and power

The tall old clock in the corner of the room struck twelve and a screech-owl in a tree near the window began to utter its melancholy wail

I relit the candle, turned down the lamp and went up stairs to bed A black cat that from the head of the steps had watched my ascent, fled at my approach and escaped over the balcony at the back of the house.

I went to bed leaving the doors and windows open for it was summer but I still found my mind occupied by the subject of which I had been talking and reading Nevertheless I at last sank into that state of half consciousness that precedes the coming of sleep when I was startled into wakefulness again by a noise in the lower part of the house It sounded as if some one was moving there among the chairs. Listening for some time in vain to hear a repetition of the noise I concluded that my imagination had played me a trick, and again courted sleep

Once more I had fallen into a doze, when I was aroused by a crash below as if all the crockery in the house had been violently hurled upon the floor There was no mistake this time

I rose from the bed, and taking Dr Warner's revolver from the mantel piece for it was his bed room that I occupied, I crept stealthily down stairs prepared to deal, not with disembodied spirits but robbers I passed through the hall to the dining room through which I examined the apartment cautiously before entering

Through the darkness I distinctly saw the outlines of a white object near the side-board Step by step it moved toward me crouching low as it came, and finally remained motionless

"Who are you?" I asked.

Three distinct raps on the floor were given in reply

"Who are you?" this time I almost shrieked

"Rap-rap-rap!" was the only answer

"Speak or I will shoot!" while my pistol was raised and my finger was on the trigger

Suddenly a thought occurred to me

"Ponto!" I called, and in a moment the pointer was greeting me with every demonstration of joy By my negligence a window had been left open and the temptation was greater than the dog could withstand He had caused the crash of crockery by dragging from the side-board the waiter containing the ham and what remained of the cold chicken

The raps that I had heard the dog had made by striking the floor as he wagged his tail at the sound of my voice

I passed the rest of the night without being disturbed by either dog or spirits

THE TALE OF A SHIRT

A New Fashion in this Masculine Indispensable—Its Advantages Considered.

Peck's Sun

In the course of a confidential conversation with a friend who had recently had two shirts made, we learned incidentally that the style of building shirts had radically changed, and that they are being made to button in the front instead of at the back [illegible] The news was so good that we could not believe it until we had it directly from a shirtmaker who showed us the ground plan and front elevation that had been prepared by architects for the erection of some fine shirts for our best citizens and sure enough the old fashion of building them in front instead of [illegible] between the shoulder blades [illegible] the fashion. We have [illegible] proportion of [illegible] a resolution [illegible] to wear [illegible] our life Those shirts that [illegible] have been the cause of more [illegible] any one thing. Shirts that [illegible] have been the cause of crime [illegible] can not [illegible] people to reach over its line [illegible] swear around to the back of the [illegible] Talk about spending thousands of dollars to find the North Pole if half the money spent in that way was offered as a reward for the detection of the man who invented shirts that button in the back and he could be turned loose among men that have suffered for years by his devilish contrivance it would be well expended

The bare idea of having shirts to open in front will give a feeling of rest to tired backaching humanity To stand up to the glass and button a shirt and see what you are about, will be bliss indeed The thought of a generous slit in the bosom of a shirt where one's hand may wander is elysium There are times—we say it advisedly—there are times when the best of us want to put a hand inside a shirt-bosom but with the old shirt that buttons in the back a man might as well be in a burglar proof safe with the combination lost as to try to get in A man's stomach has been a sealed book for fifteen years with the old boiler iron shirt bosom, with no port holes Occasionally a man's heart aches and if he could put his hand on it without going around the back way and sneaking in under the arm he could tell by the feeling whether it was unrequited affection or rheumatism With the new shirt an exploring expedition can be sent to the seat of the disease before it is everlastingly too late Men have been wounded and before they could be turned over and entrance to the shirt found they have bled to death The old back action shirt is a fraud and the new one is a daisy

AN ODD OCEAN STEAMER.

No Masts, the Deck Covered with a Dome, and to Cross the Atlantic in Six Days.

NYACK June 24 —A dome covered and mastless vessel is being built here at the yard of James E Smith for the American Quick Transit Steamship Company It is the invention of Captain Moreland for forty years connected with the Cunard line She will be launched about the middle of July, but as it will take a month to put in her boilers and machinery she will not be ready for her trial trip before the latter part of August. If she realizes the expectations of her inventor she will be put in the West India fruit trade and other vessels will be made for the freight and passenger trans atlantic service All of her timbers are in position, her planking is about completed, and a large force of men are hurrying forward the work. The best materials are used and she will be stronger than the ordinary vessel to sustain the strain of her engines which will be double the usual power

The vessel is 150 feet long 21 beam and 10 extreme breadth She is sharp forward and has a long clean run aft The speed promised is about 25 miles an hour, so that the voyage across the Atlantic may be made in less than six days The model is different in every important respect from the ocean steamers now in use First she has about 33 per cent more beam, and instead of the straight sides going deep into the water, there will be a graceful rise from the keel to the lead line It is claimed that the hull will be more stable without ballast than the present type of vessels The "turtle back," or dome deck is a distinguishing feature, as it will afford enlarged space on passenger vessels for saloon accommodations, and on freight vessels, for the comfortable housing of cattle It can be used as a promenade deck in fair weather The whole upper deck will thus be covered in and the space usually exposed to the weather will be entirely utilized It will thus be light airy and well ventilated Abaft will be the main saloon a spacious apartment furnished in mahogany and black walnut Large staterooms will open from the main saloon Directly forward of the main saloon will be the engine room then the mess room and the officers staterooms Still farther forward will be the quarters for the crew. Greater safety is claimed for the turtle back, it will tie the vessel's sides together, thus making her stronger, no sea no matter how large can strike at right angles and the concussive force from boarding seas is avoided by the perfect shedding of them on the curved surface The wheelhouse smoke stacks, ventilators and flag and signal staffs will be the only things rising above the upper decks. There will be no spars or masts Among the advantages claimed is the absence of all top weight which strains the ship in heavy weather the avoiding of a great outlay for sails and rigging and the dispensing with a large crew of practical sailors [illegible] claim is that in a straight course on the ocean taking the wind as it blows the [illegible] resistance against the spars masts and rigging of a vessel driven by steam power is so great that the gain by their removal will more than compensate for the loss of the advantage of sails in a favoring breeze To meet the emergency of derangement to the main screw or machinery at sea a pair of auxiliary screws are placed one above the other in [illegible] just forward of the rudder post and entirely independent of the main shaft and screw When not in use they will be enclosed by large shutters flush with the wood If the ordinary steering apparatus should become disabled the arrangement of these shutters is such that they can be used as a sort of [illegible] rudder one for port and one for starboard

Preparation for Matrimony

According to Mr Ira S. Parke of Nevada every man ought to meet the future wife of his bosom when she is young and take a hand in her training That was Parke's theory [illegible] he argued mere love is folly marriage is business all the time Mr Parke lived in Six Mile canyon and near him dwelt a poor man with a pretty little daughter away down in her teens In talking with a neighbor one day the theorist proposed that he should take the neighbor's daughter partly in hand send her to school and then marry her for, thought Mr Parke, as the twig is bent the tree's inclined The neighbor agreed partly because he knew that his friend was a trustworthy man and partly because he of his own means would not be able to give his daughter proper schooling. The process of teaching the young idea how to shoot went swimmingly on for a few years until month or so ago A visit to her home then revealed in the object of the experiment a lovely maiden—modest well informed and as Mr Parke no doubt rapturously whispered to himself in every way fit to make a man happy Such was the condition of affairs when the snows of the Sierras began to give way before the warmth of coming summer. Mr Parke seized the opportunity of the visit to tell his protege of the delightful arrangement To his surprise such of the girl's smiles as she gave [illegible] punctuate his recitation were accompanied by shoulder shrugs uplifting eyebrows and [illegible] the puckers To bring the matter to an end with its climax the girl ran away with her real lover that night and now Mr Parke is selling at auction a lot costly furniture with which he had stocked his bride's nest

Desire no more Controversy.

NEW YORK June 29 —The wiser heads of the republican party here, it is said are sending strong remonstrances to Jay A Hubbell against any further controversy just now with the civil service reformers and also against any further attempt to collect money for campaign purposes from federal employes They characterize it as an unprofitable issue any way and obtruded upon the public at a most inopportune time Moreover if there is any possible advantage to accrue from it they are certain it will be reaped by the democrats and not the republicans The men who are thus advising Mr. Hubbell and the republican committee for whom he is acting are understood to be merchants, bankers and business men persons who have heretofore been among the most liberal contributors to the election expenses and who expect to be so again though none of them are or expect to be office holders It is not the first remonstrance of the kind from the same quarter but it is uttered now in the imperative mood

Tricks of Tobacconists.

New York Times

The tricks of the tobacconist's trade have again been brought unpleasantly to the attention of the public Some street urchins were arrested recently for picking up discarded and uncut cigar stumps from the gutters They explained that they engaged in the occupation because [illegible] were bought up by certain [illegible] manufacturers The stock thus secured was made use of in producing new [illegible] for the market In addition to this refuse tobacco however vanilla and valerian as well as cascarilla bark are used to impart a pleasant flavor A like mixture [illegible] material is known to obtain in a great deal [illegible] in making cigars It is in the imitation of the flavor of really good cigars however that great ingenuity is displayed and rich profits [illegible] A recent writer [illegible] [illegible]

EASTERN FREIGHT SITUATION.

NEW YORK July 12 —The strike of freight handlers still continues and piers and depots are still crowded with freight which inexperienced men employed in place of strikers cannot handle and as a consequence deliveries are very slow, and such freight as is intended for shipment to California via Cape Horn is much delayed The Palmyra is finished as far as general cargo is concerned and the St. Francis is now loading. The Triumphant is doing fairly and will be loaded by the 20th inst However much depends upon delivery of her engagements Rates are about as before Tonnage is scarcely so plenty for available vessels for which there is no demand for grain and petroleum at full rates Overland shipments are in [illegible] hindered by the strike [illegible] yet the aggregate movement is larger than last week
